

Understanding Your TOEFL Junior® Standard Score Report

TOEFL Junior® Standard score reports are valuable tools that can help guide students. They include section and total scores, overall score levels as well as statements that students, parents and instructors can use to better understand students' proficiency levels and progress. For more detailed information about the TOEFL Junior Standard test, visit www.ets.org/toefl_junior.

The Overall Score Level is in the range of 1–5 and is accompanied by an overall performance descriptor.

Section Scores range from 200–300 and are reported in five-point increments with section performance descriptors.

Scores from the three different sections should not be directly compared because the measures are scaled differently.

The Total Score is a sum of the three section scores and ranges from 600–900.

The Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR) is a widely used tool for understanding different levels of language proficiency.

The score report provides a CEFR Level for each section. The performance descriptors for each section are adapted from the CEFR level descriptors to reflect the TOEFL Junior test content and the age of the test takers.

The Lexile® Measure matches English-language readers with appropriate texts. Use your Lexile Measure to find books at the right reading level. Browse the Lexile Book Database and find the right books for you at www.lexile.com/toefljunior.

Acceptable Scores and Appropriate Uses

Each school determines for itself what scores, or ranges of scores, are acceptable. There is no specific passing or failing score set by ETS for the TOEFL Junior Standard test. Based on the test design and the validity evidence collected so far, TOEFL Junior Standard test scores are recommended for the following uses:

- Determining whether students have sufficient communicative skills to succeed in a classroom that uses English for instruction
- Placing students in English-language programs so they are matched with level-appropriate instruction
- Monitoring student progress over time to gauge learning and changes in proficiency
- Using performance feedback, including can-do statements for instructors, to tailor English instruction and guide conversations with parents

Recommended Score Validity — Two Years

The TOEFL Junior test measures a test taker's current level of English-language proficiency and is not designed to be a predictor of future TOEFL iBT® scores. Because of the rapid development of English proficiency by test takers within the TOEFL Junior test's recommended age range, it is recommended that scores not be used beyond two years. However, scores can be considered valid beyond two years if the test taker has provided evidence of having maintained the same level of English language learning. ETS does not require testing centers to retain test administration data beyond two years.
